Gas Company Announces Plans For Scholarship

An orientation for prospective entrants in the fourth annual F. S. Wade architectural scholarship was presented at El Camino College last week by officials of Southern California Gas Company.

Don Garvey, senior kitchen planning adviser for the gas company, spoke to students on the gas company sponsored contest, which carries as first prize a $1500 grant for study at the University of Southern California school of architecture.

Contest Winner
The scholarship, which has increased by $500 over previous years, will go to the winning student in a design competition for an original family kitchen area.

Modern gas appliances within the balanced power concept of energy utilization must be included in the design.

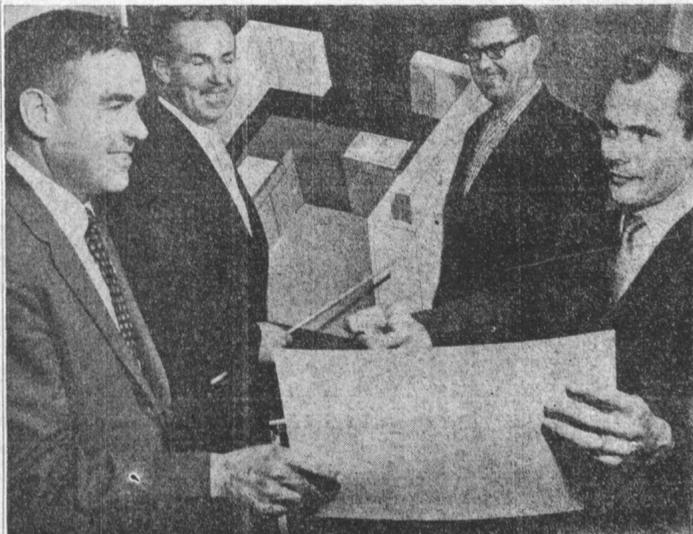

Established by the Southern California and Southern Counties Gas companies in 1959, the scholarship is open to students enrolled in colleges and junior colleges in the two gas utilities' operating territories and Bakersfield and Long Beach.

Entrants must have completed one or more college years by the end of the 1961-62 school year.

Honors Wade
The annual scholarship was established in honor of Franklin S. Wade, former president of both gas companies.

Wade was also chairman of the board of Southern California Gas Company and director of Southern Counties.

In addition to his orientation talk on the Wade scholarship, Garvey talked on the fundamentals of modern kitchen design.

kitchen planning adviser for the gas company; art design instructor Robert C. Niece; and architectural drafting instructor Albert E. Palmer.

Polynesian Sets Festivity for 4th Anniversary

The fourth anniversary of the Polynesian Restaurant in Torrance, the only authentic South Pacific dining establishment in America, will be celebrated Tuesday with festivity and special entertainment.

The Polynesian, headed by general-manager Pete Reitz, first opened on the coast highway in 1957 and immediately became an exotic showplace rich in tropical splendor.

Guest entertainers from the islands, featuring spirited dances and gay festival songs, will spark the anniversary party.

Coincident with the celebration will be a new dining service — bread!

The Polynesian will start its fifth year by making fresh, crisp French bread available to its guests.

This innovation, a custom unknown in South Pacific restaurants, is being introduced to pamper mainland appetites.

In recent years the popularity of polynesian restaurants has been wide-spread and though many have burgeoned in Southern California, none have duplicated The Polynesian in the service of real polynesian foods.

A tribute to the original Polynesian Restaurant is that phases of operation, its decor and beverage menu provided a pattern for some of the newer establishments.

But no other restaurant, thus far, serves authentically South Pacific specialties, which notably distinguishes The Polynesian from all the other tropical restaurants.
